[INDIVIDUAL NAME],

Unfortunately, I am writing to inform you that our sales systems provider, Missing Link Networks, Inc., (“Missing Link”) notified us on May 27th, 2015 of a possible security incident involving your credit and debit card data. Since then we have been working tirelessly with Missing Link and their other affected clients to understand the scope of the situation and how to best help you. We have not been in a position to notify you sooner as we first had to establish clarity on what information might have been breached, understand the notification requirements in each state and, as required by law, first notify certain state authorities.

Missing Link has advised us that during the window of April 1, 2015 to April 30, 2015, a third party might have gained access to certain personal information, including customer names, card numbers, related payment addresses, passwords, and dates of birth. It is important to note that Missing Link did not have your Social Security Number, your Driver License Number or the security code on your credit card (CVV). Consequently, the risk of identity theft is low.

For ease of reference, your card on file is a [Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover] ending in [last 4 digits].

We are working diligently with Missing Link to address the issue. Missing Link has notified the credit and debit card companies and supplied them detailed information on the affected accounts, and we’ve been assured that these accounts are being monitored for fraud. Missing Link has also assured us that the security breach has been contained, and that customers may safely use their credit and debit cards. To date, we have not received any customer notifications regarding fraudulent activity. Additionally, Missing Link has taken aggressive action to upgrade its security and it should be noted that Repris is only one of many Missing Link clients that have been affected, so it’s possible that you may receive similar notifications from other wineries.

I encourage you to monitor your credit and debit card accounts, and to notify your bank if you notice any suspicious activity. I also encourage you to refer to the information below concerning additional steps you can take to protect your credit, your accounts, and your identity. Please contact your credit card company to determine what additional security or other protective measures can be placed on your account or if you notice any suspicious activities. Missing Link has suggested Identity Theft Resource Center (ITRC) as a resource for customers. ITRC will provide toll-free, no cost counseling to help resolve fraudulent charges and provide support and counseling in the instance of identity theft, if any. Please visit itrc@idtheftcenter.org for more information.

I sincerely apologize for any inconvenience that this may cause you. As common as incidents like this seem to have become, we take this extremely seriously and the trust of our customers is paramount to us. Please rest assured that we are doing everything we can to protect you. If you have any questions please call me at 707.939.7532 or email me here [here has email link chris@repriswines.com].

Sincerely,

Chris O’Connell
Allocation Manager

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Review Your Account Statements and Notify Law Enforcement of Suspicious Activity

We recommend that you contact your credit or debit card issuer to determine whether a new card should be issued and whether additional levels of security or protective measures should be placed on the account. We also recommend that you remain vigilant by reviewing your account statements and credit reports closely, and that you should not provide personal information in response to suspicious emails, especially including those from an unknown source/sender. If you detect any suspicious activity on an account, you should promptly notify the financial institution or company with which the account is maintained. You should also promptly report any fraudulent activity or any suspected incidence of identity theft to proper law enforcement authorities, your state attorney general, and/or the Federal Trade Commission. In Massachusetts, you have the right to obtain a police report if you are a victim of identity theft.

Copy of Credit Report

You may obtain a free copy of your credit report from each of the three major credit reporting agencies once every 12 months by visiting <http://www.annualcreditreport.com>, calling toll-free 877-322-8228, or by completing an Annual Credit Report Request Form and mailing it to Annual Credit Report Request Service, P.O. Box 105281, Atlanta, GA 30348. The FTC advises that you do not contact the three nationwide credit reporting companies individually, because they are providing free annual credit reports only through www.annualcreditreport.com, 1-877-322- 8228 or mailing to Annual Credit Report Request Service.

Upon receipt of your credit report, we recommend that you review the “inquiries,” section for names of any creditors from whom you have not requested credit, and the “personal information,” section for any inaccuracies. Any unusual activity or information could be a sign of potential identify theft. If you observe such information, contact the credit bureau listed at the top of the report. Your credit report will be reviewed by the bureau staff with you, and if any information cannot be explained, you may need to contact the creditors involved

Contact information for the three national credit reporting agencies is below:

Fraud Alert

You may also want to consider placing a fraud alert on your credit report. An initial fraud alert is free and will stay on your credit file for at least 90 days. The alert informs creditors of possible fraudulent activity within your report and requests that the creditor contact you prior to establishing any accounts in your name. To place a fraud alert on your credit report, contact any of the three credit reporting agencies identified above.

Security Freeze

In some U.S. states, you have the right to put a security freeze on your credit file. This will prevent new credit from being opened in your name without the use of a PIN number that is issued to you when you initiate the freeze. A security freeze is designed to prevent potential creditors from accessing your credit report without your consent. As a result, using a security freeze may interfere with or delay your ability to obtain credit. You must separately place a security freeze on your credit file with each credit reporting agency. Additionally, if you request a security freeze from a consumer reporting agency there may be a fee of up to $5 to place, lift, or remove the security freeze. In order to place a security freeze, you may be required to provide the consumer reporting agency with information that identifies you including your full name, Social Security number, date of birth, current and previous addresses, a copy of your state-issued identification card, and a recent utility bill, bank statement or insurance statement.
